THE ENEMY BELOW

Composed and Conducted by LEIGH HARLINE
Intrada Special Collection Volume ISC 15

20th Century Fox's 1957 battle-of-the-wills feature The Enemy Below tells the compelling tale of a showdown between an American destroyer and a German U-boat. Robert Mitchum plays the destroyer captain and Kurt Jurgens portrays the U-boat commander, each of whom is given equal story time as they try to blow each other out of the water.

Leigh Harline, most noted for his Disney scores to Snow White and Pinocchio, spotlights the action with powerful low brass music for the German sub and rousing military music for the U.S. destroyer. Harline confined his scoring to tactical operations and maneuvers between the dueling warships...the action of the film. Once the final battle is engaged, Harline's score plays wall-to-wall for nearly nineteen minutes of intense action. The struggle filters into the music, with strident minor mode variations on the destroyer theme competing with the thrusting trombone chords of the submarine motif. Much of this exciting music became familiar when re-used in later Irwin Allen TV projects, such as "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea."

Intrada presents the complete score for The Enemy Below in stereo from the multi-track magnetic masters preserved in excellent condition in the 20th Century-Fox music vaults. This Special Collection release also features "bonus tracks" of Harline's fully-composed "radar blips", Jurgens and crew in a patriotic song, marching music and detailed liner notes by Jeff Bond.

This volume is limited to 1000 copies.
