Composed and Conducted by CHRISTOPHER CALIENDO
Intrada Signature Edition ISE1007

Major Dundee (1965) was Sam Peckinpah's first large scale, big-budget feature, telling the story of Amos Dundee (Charlton Heston), an oppressive Union Army officer, who leads a troop of Army regulars, Confederate prisoners, and scouts on a brutal mission into Mexico to destroy a band of Apaches who have abducted children and terrorized the countryside.

This dark tale was edited for its initial release without Peckinpah's consent or involvement, and he disowned the film. Forty years later, Columbia Pictures restored most of the missing footage and reissued the film as "The Extended Version" with a new 5.1 Dolby Digital soundtrack. In a rare instance of film restoration, Columbia Pictures commissioned a new score by newcomer Christopher Caliendo.

In place of the traditional score by Daniele Amfitheatrof, Caliendo takes a multi-pronged approach, spotting the film with an aggressive theme to match Dundee's arrogant, brutal mein, and employing more ethnic instrumentation for local color and delicacy.
